MY 4-YEAR OLD TWINS.

What better way to get to know my core consumer than by seeing through their eyes every day?

My kids might be biased, but they love all things Play-Doh – and I regularly get down on the floor with them, open up a Play-Doh can and just PLAY! (Yes, I am totally ok with mixing colors – it’s all part of the journey!)

A photo of me with my kids, taken our first week after moving back to Boston from Hong Kong.

HONG KONG SKYLINE & SKYSCRAPERS.

After spending 7 years living in Hong Kong and traveling Asia, I am always drawn to Hong Kong’s incredible landscape as a gorgeous backdrop to the massive, densely packed skyscrapers. This photo by one of my favorite photographers, Romain Jacquet-Lagrece, hangs on my wall.

MEOWWOLF IN SANTA FE, NEW MEXICO.

Thanks to Stacy Forgang from our Brand Publicity team, I had the opportunity to check out this awesome immersive art exhibit during our Play-Doh Imagination Camp. Totally mind-blowing and I am still thinking about it. Can’t wait to go back!

“PRIDE & PREJUDICE” BY JANE AUSTEN.

I am a total book nerd and love a good period piece. Elizabeth Bennet is an icon and was one of the OG strong female leads. I think I have read this book at least 50 times and can pick up anywhere in the story; it’s like putting on a cozy blanket. Best Elizabeth Bennet quote: “There is a stubbornness about me that never can bear to be frightened at the will of others. My courage always rises at every attempt to intimidate me.”

ADAM GRANT’S “RE-THINKING” PODCAST.

Recommended to me by my fellow Global Play Lead Kristin McKay (Preschool & Fashion), this has been my latest commuter content.
