MEDIA ALERT

Bronzeville Week event today featuring Jacob Latimore at capacity

A hybrid Bronzeville Week event happening at noon today (Wednesday, August 10) - A Conversation with Milwaukee's Own Jacob Latimore – has reached capacity for in-person attendees, but can still be viewed live via streaming video.

Alderwoman Milele A. Coggs said the event, scheduled to take place at America's Black Holocaust Museum, 401 W. North Ave., required pre-registration because of limited space at the venue. She said registration has reached full capacity and she is encouraging anyone interested in taking in the event to watch it as it is live streamed at www.Facebook.com/BronzevilleWeek.

"Jacob is a truly gifted actor and artist, and we are excited to have him as a featured guest during Bronzeville Week," Alderwoman Coggs said. "We hope anyone not pre-registered to get into the museum venue for the conversation with him will go to the Bronzeville Week Facebook page for the live stream starting at noon."

Bronzeville Week, an official City of Milwaukee event now in its 11th year, continues through the end of this week with a variety of events targeting wellness, arts, business and culture.
