MARKET COMMENTARY

We have just passed the one-year anniversary of the dramatic stock market falls which occurred globally in the early days of the COVID crisis.

Looking back, Australia has coped relatively well with the virus, benefiting from our geographic isolation and sparse population. Argo's shares, often seen as a safe haven in a crisis, have traded at a premium to NTA backing for most of that period.

Ultimately the recovery of markets has been remarkable, with the ASX200 Accumulation Index rebounding 48% over the 12 months from the low point of 23 March 2020.

More recently, despite a slower-than-expected start to the vaccine roll-out, the Australian market has continued its ascent, increasing +2.4% in March to post its sixth consecutive month of gains.

Corporate activity has picked up too, including takeover bids received for three of the stocks in Argo's portfolio, Tabcorp, Crown Resorts and Vocus Group, although some of the bids are highly conditional.
