ASX and Media Announcement

Minerium To Ramp Up Digital Asset Mining Activities & Telegram Based Social Gaming Platform Completed

Fattfish Group Ltd (“FFG” or the “Company”) is pleased to provide an operation update on its investee company Minerium Technology Ltd (“Minerium”) and FFG’s social gaming division.

1. Minerium Technology Update

Minerium is a blockchain mining technology firm that runs large scale blockchain mining facilities. Fattfish currently owns a 49% interest in Minerium, having first invested into the company in 2018. Minerium targets operating in geographic locations where low-cost energy is readily available. Minerium’s blockchain mining farms are secure and equipped with efficient computational power designed specifically for cryptocurrency mining. .

FFG’s last substantive update on Minerium was on 14 May 2019 at which point FFG sought to scale down activities at Minerium in response to adverse operating conditions.

Growing interest in Digital Assets And Blockchain Mining

The blockchain and digital asset sector has recently seen renewed interest across a broad spectrum of investors including institutional investors, funds and fund managers, as well as retail investors, especially facilitated by the launch of US approved Exchange Traded Funds (ETFs) that focus on digital assets. These movements have had a significant positive impact on digital asset prices.

As Minerium’s earnings are being positively correlated to increases in digital asset prices, these shifts are materially improving the operating conditions for Minerium. Minerium and Fattfish are accordingly planning a ramp up of activities at Minerium.

Additionally, with growing market interest in Doge – a digital asset more recently popularised by Elon Musk – FFG and Minerium will explore mining Doge in addition to its existing focus on blue-chip digital assets.

2. Social Gaming Telegram Engine Completed

FFG is pleased to provide an update on development of its Telegram based social gaming platform, first announced on 26 September 2024.
