Dear Deputy Commissioner Miller,

Due to the border crisis created by this administration, U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP) agents are overwhelmed by illegal aliens crossing the southwest border, many of whom resort to physical violence to evade detainment. In FY23, CBP reported that 610 agents were assaulted, while in FY24 at least 413 agents were assaulted.¹ Though these incidents primarily involve physical assault, CBP agents also endure a large percentage of assaults by other means, including through the use of projectiles, vehicles, and firearms.

Recently, it was reported that an illegal alien bit a CBP agent in the face while the agent was attempting to detain a group that had crossed the border in New Mexico.² According to the report, the illegal alien who bit the agent was arrested and taken to the hospital, with the agent sustaining non-life threatening injuries. Though this incident was somewhat outlandish in the mode of attack, CBP agents have stated they experience assaults like this almost every night while on duty, including getting rushed by large groups of illegal aliens all at once, many of whom will punch and kick the outnumbered agents.³

In the attack described above, it has been reported that the illegal alien who attacked the agent has been charged with assault of a federal agent.⁴ However, agents have stated that many times illegal aliens who assault their fellow agents are not prosecuted. In one instance, a Border Patrol agent was pulled off his horse by an illegal alien, after which both the agent and the illegal alien were injured. In subsequent prosecution, the illegal alien was not charged with assault on the agent but only for illegal entry into the country.⁵

⁵ Taer, supra note 3.

In August, CBP issued a press release stating that Border Patrol, specifically in the El Paso Sector, were seeing a “significant rise” in assaults on agents.⁶ The stated purpose of the press release was to remind criminals about the consequences of assaulting a federal officer. However, reported statements of on-the-ground CBP agents seems to contradict the press release’s claim that CBP is working closely with the Department of Justice (DOJ) to hold these criminal illegal aliens accountable.⁷

In light of this, please answer the following questions by October 31, 2024:

1. How many illegal aliens has CBP referred to DOJ for prosecution for assaulting CBP agents?
2. Of those who have been referred to DOJ, how many have been charged with assault?
3. When an illegal alien who assaulted an agent is not charged with assault, does CBP reach out to DOJ to discuss the rationale behind this decision?
4. Aside from simply investigating the incident, does DOJ reach out to the agent who was assaulted when deciding whether to charge an illegal alien with assault?
5. How many total agents have been assaulted by illegal aliens in FY24?
6. Does CBP have an estimate of the number of illegal aliens who have assaulted CBP agents?
7. How many illegal aliens who have assaulted CBP agents have been released into the United States, including through an alternative to detention program?
8. What kinds of support does CBP provide to agents who have been victims of assault by illegal aliens?

We look forward to your timely response.

Sincerely,
