MARKET COMMENTARY

Global infrastructure stocks posted a modest gain in May (+0.3% in A$ terms) but underperformed broader equities as investors generally maintained a healthy appetite for risk, albeit amid periods of volatility in response to inflationary concerns.

Argo Infrastructure's portfolio returned +0.9% for the month. Performance was bolstered by an overweight position in Canadian Pacific Railway which withdrew its bid to acquire Kansas City Southern, choosing not to engage in an aggressive bidding war with its main rival, Canadian National Railway.

Infrastructure subsectors exposed to the 'reopening trade' were among the best performers during the month. Increasing volumes boosted marine ports (+5.2%) and surging energy commodity prices saw mid-stream energy stocks return +2.1% and gas distribution companies advance +1.1%.

Reflecting optimism around the economic and activity implications of vaccine distribution globally, Argo Infrastructure's Portfolio Manager, Cohen & Steers, is maintaining a balanced investment portfolio. We anticipate a return to more normal economic activity in the second half of this calendar. However, the path will likely be uneven due to varying virus strains and differing travel restrictions and reopening policies.
