J.P.Morgan

The following is a summary of the terms of the notes offered by the preliminary pricing supplement hyperlinked below.

Overview

The notes provide exposure to the J.P. Morgan Multi-Asset Index (the "Index"), which seeks to provide a dynamic and diversified asset allocation based on a momentum investment strategy, while attempting to maintain a stable level of volatility over time. The Index tracks the return of (a) a dynamic notional portfolio consisting of up to 10 excess return futures-based indices (each a "Constituent," and collectively the "Constituents"), converted into U.S. dollars (in the case of Constituents not denominated in U.S. dollars), less (b) a 1.00% per annum daily deduction, with an initial volatility threshold of 4.0%. The Constituents represent a broad range of asset classes (equities, fixed income and commodities) and developed markets (the United States, Germany and Japan).

Selected Risks

- The notes may not pay more than the principal amount at maturity.
- The Index is subject to a 1.00% per annum daily deduction.
- The Index involves risks associated with the Index's momentum investment strategy, which may not be successful, and the Index may not approximate its initial volatility threshold or outperform an alternative strategy.
- No interest payments or voting rights.
- Our affiliate, J.P. Morgan Securities LLC (who we refer to as JPMS), the index sponsor and index calculation agent, may adjust the Index in a way that affects its level.

Selected Risks (continued)

- Any payment on the notes is subject to the credit risks of JPMorgan Chase Financial Company LLC and JPMorgan Chase & Co. Therefore the value of the notes prior to maturity will be subject to changes in the market's view of the creditworthiness of JPMorgan Chase Financial Company LLC or JPMorgan Chase & Co.
- Risks associated with non-U.S. securities market (including currency exchange risks), small capitalization stocks, fixed income securities (including interest rate-related and credit risks), commodity futures, crude oil, gold and the uncertain legal and regulatory regimes that govern commodity futures.
- The Call Value for each Review Date is greater than the Initial Value and increases progressively over the term of the notes.
- If the notes are automatically called, the appreciation potential of the notes is limited to the applicable Call Premium Amount paid on the notes.
- The automatic call feature may force a potential early exit.
- As a finance subsidiary, JPMorgan Chase Financial Company LLC has no independent operations and has limited assets.
- Because the Index may include notional short positions, the notes may be subject to additional risks.
- Changes in the value of Constituents may offset each other.
- A significant portion of the Index's exposure may be allocated to the Bond Constituents.
- The Constituents are subject to significant risks associated with futures contracts.
- Suspension or disruptions of market trading in futures contracts may adversely affect the value of the notes.
- An increase in the margin requirements for futures contracts included in the Constituents may adversely affect the level of that Constituent.
- Changes in future prices of the futures contracts included in the Constituents relative to their current prices could lead to a decrease in any payment on the notes.
- We will have the right to adjust the timing and amount of any payment on the notes if a commodity hedging disruption event occurs.
- The estimated value of the notes will be lower than the original issue price (price to public) of the notes.
- The estimated value of the notes is determined by reference to an internal funding rate.
- The estimated value of the notes does not represent future values and may differ from others' estimates.
- The value of the notes, which may be reflected in customer account statements, may be higher than the then current estimated value of the notes for a limited time period.
- Lack of liquidity: JPMS intends to offer to purchase the notes in the secondary market but is not required to do so. The price, if any, at which JPMS will be willing to purchase notes from you in the secondary market, if at all, may result in a significant loss of your principal.
- Potential conflicts: We and our affiliates play a variety of roles in connection with the issuance of notes, including acting as calculation agent and hedging our obligations under the notes, and making the assumptions used to determine the pricing of the notes and the estimated value of the notes when the terms of the notes are set. It is possible that such hedging or other trading activities of J.P. Morgan or its affiliates could result in substantial returns for J.P. Morgan and its affiliates while the value of the notes declines.
- The tax consequences of the notes may be uncertain. You should consult your tax adviser regarding the U.S. federal income tax consequences of an investment in the notes.

The risks identified above are not exhaustive. Please see "Risk Factors" in the prospectus supplement and the applicable product supplement and underlying supplement, Annex A to the prospectus addendum and "Selected Risk Considerations" in the applicable preliminary pricing supplement for additional information.
