

Senate Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs

The Congressional Budget Act of 1974 requires the Congressional Budget Office, to the extent practicable, to prepare estimates of the budgetary effects of legislation ordered reported by Congressional authorizing committees. In order to provide the Congress with as much information as possible, the attached table summarizes information about the estimated direct spending and revenue effects of some of the legislation that has been ordered reported by the Senate Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs during the 118th Congress. The legislation listed in this table generally would have small effects, if any, on direct spending or revenues, CBO estimates. Where possible, the table also provides information about the legislation's estimated effects on spending subject to appropriation and on intergovernmental and private-sector mandates as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act.

The working group were be required to report to the Congress and to post that report on FEMA's website. CBO estimates that enacting H.R. 255 would not affect direct spending or revenues. CBO estimates that implementing the legislation would increase spending subject to appropriation by less than $500,000 over the 2025-2029 period; any spending would be subject to the availability of appropriated funds. The legislation contains no intergovernmental or private sector mandates as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act.

H.R. 5527 also would create new reporting requirements for federal agencies regarding IT systems. In 2024, $50 million was appropriated for the TMF. CBO estimates that enacting H.R. 5527 would not affect direct spending or revenues. CBO has not estimated the legislation's effects on spending subject to appropriation. I.R. 5887	Government Service Delivery Improvement Act	Ordered reported	09/18/24	800	Between zero and	0	Not Estimated	Yes	No	No	Matthew Pickford
	H.R. 5887 would require the Office of Management and Budget to designate a senior official as the Federal Government Service Delivery Lead to coordinate improved service delivery. In addition, the legislation would require agencies to appoint officials to facilitate improvement in their missions and would direct the Government Accountability Office and those agencies to report to the Congress on those efforts. Enacting H.R. 5887 could affect direct spending by some agencies that are allowed to use fees, receipts from the sale of goods, and other collections to cover operating costs. CBO estimates that any net changes in direct spending by those agencies would be negligible because most of them can adjust amounts collected to reflect changes in operating costs. CBO estimates that enacting H.R. 5887 would have no effect on revenues. CBO has not estimated the legislation's effects on spending subject to appropriation. The legislation contains no intergovernmental or private-sector mandates as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act.

Special districts provide such public services as fire protection, municipal water and wastewater treatment, and electric power supply. CBO estimates that enacting H.R. 7525 would not affect direct spending or revenues. CBO estimates that implementing the legislation would cost less than $500,000 over the 2025-2029 period; any spending would be subject to the availability of appropriated funds. S. 3926 would increase the amount of information that the Department of the Treasury must publish each year concerning federal spending. The bill also would direct the department and the Office of Management and Budget to establish standards to ensure that federal agencies report complete, accurate financial data, and it would require agencies' inspectors general to assess and report to the Congress biennially on the quality of reported financial data. Enacting S. 3926 could affect direct spending by some agencies that are allowed to use fees, receipts from the sale of goods, and other collections to cover operating costs. CBO estimates that any net changes in direct spending by those agencies would be negligible because most of them can adjust amounts collected to reflect changes in operating costs. CBO estimates that enacting S. 3926 would have no effect on revenues. CBO has not estimated the bill's effects on spending subject to appropriation. 	S. 4043 would alter governmentwide teleworking policies, requiring the Office of Personnel Management to establish standards for federal agencies to track employee teleworking and federal agencies to monitor the effects teleworking on agency performance and use of office space. S. 4043 also would require each agency and the Government Accountability Office to report to the Congress on the bill's implementation. Enacting S. 4043 could affect direct spending by some agencies that are allowed to use fees, receipts from the sale of goods, and other collections to cover operating costs. CBO estimates that any net changes in direct spending by those agencies would be negligible because most of them can adjust amounts collected to reflect changes in operating costs. 	S. 4055 would require the Office of Management and Budget to initiate a pilot program with three agencies and one military department to improve government contracting outcomes over a two-year period. The program were focus on measuring the outcomes of contracts, including cost avoidance or savings, timeliness, and user satisfaction. The Office of Federal Procurement Policy and the Government Accountability Office would be required report to the Congress on the program's implementation. Enacting S. 4055 could affect direct spending by some agencies that are allowed to use fees, receipts from the sale of goods, and other collections to cover operatin costs. CBO estimates that any net changes in direct spending by those agencies would be negligible because most of them can adjust amounts collected to reflect changes in operating costs. The bill also would require the President to report to the Congress periodically on the need for and status of declared emergencies. CBO cannot predict the number or timing of future declarations but expects that most would be approve by the Congress. Under S. 4373 emergency declarations could have a shorter duration than under current law. If that happens, direct spending related to such emergencies would decline; however, because CBO expects the Congress would approve most declarations, we estimate that any reduction in direct spending would be insignificant. S. 4373 also would extend protections to U.S. persons who may face sanctions for contributing to a national emergency declared under the International Emergency Economic Powers Act. If enacting the protections in S. 4373 leads the Administration to impose fewer sanctions, revenues from sanctions penalties, and dir spending of those penalties, would decline. CBO estimates that any reduction in direct spending or revenues would be insignificant. CBO has not estimated the bill's effects on spending subject to appropriation. The bill contains no intergovernmental or private-sector mandates as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act.

S. 4631 would bar federal agencies from placing minimum education requirements on most federal contractors' personnel unless the contract solicitation provides justification for such a requirement. The bill also would require the Office of Management and Budget to issue guidance on implementing the bill and would direct the Government Accountability Office to report to the Congress on the bill's implementation. Enacting S. 4631 could affect direct spending by some agencies that are allowed to use fees, receipts from the sale of goods, and other collections to cover operating costs. CBO estimates that any net changes in direct spending by those agencies would be negligible because most of them can adjust amounts collected to reflect changes in operating costs. S. 4700	Improving Federal Financial Management Act	Ordered reported	09/18/24	800	Between zero and $500,000	0	Not Estimated	Yes	No	No	Matthew Pickford
	S. 4700 would revise requirements for the Office of Management and Budget and federal agencies to prepare governmentwide financial plans. Under current law, those plans cover five years; the bill would require four-year financial plans and would expand the types of information reported. The bill also would broaden requirements for auditing each agency's internal controls. Enacting S. 4700 could affect direct spending by some agencies that are allowed to use fees, receipts from the sale of goods, and other collections to cover operating costs. CBO estimates that any net changes in direct spending by those agencies would be negligible because most of them or adjust amounts collected to reflect changes in operating costs. 	S. 4900 would allow the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) to increase to 85 percent or more the federal share of grants provided under the Public Assistance Program; under current law that amount typically 75 percent. To be eligible, state and local governments would be required to create emergency response teams, institute strict building codes and land use policies, and undertake other measures to abate the effects of future natural disasters. FEMA would be required to issue guidance implementing the changes within one year of enactment and would be limited to using funds appropriated after enactment to implement its provisions. CBO estimates that enacting S. 4900 would not affect direct spending or revenues. CBO has not estimated the bill's effects on spending subject to appropriation.
