H.R. 7025 would extend the term of the United States Commission on International Religious Freedom through 2026 and authorize appropriations of $3.5 million each year in 2025 and 2026 for its operations. The commission is an independent, bipartisan federal agency that monitors and reports on freedom of religion and belief in foreign countries. It also makes policy recommendations to the President, the Secretary of State, and the Congress. Under current law, its term ends on September 30, 2024.

CBO estimates that implementing H.R. 7025 would cost $7 million over the 2024-2029 period. That spending would be subject to the appropriation of the specified amounts.

The CBO staff contact for this estimate is Sunita D'Monte. The estimate was reviewed by Christina Hawley Anthony, Deputy Director of Budget Analysis.
